RE THE SILVER QUESTION.

The following is an extract from a private

I should much like to have a discussion face to face with you on the silver question. It is one of those sold cis which one cannot write about in a few words, and I should be likely to make mistakes as to facts, being out of the way of good information. I must own, however, that I have no faith in any artificial arrangements for holstering up the value of silver. As a palliative for a commercial difficulty such a step if possible at all) might be of use pravided (and very carefully provided) that there was a cerliginty that while the artificial means were affor iing temporary relief, the progress of commerce Fao Kwai, of no occupation, was brought up and of ordinary production and consumption by Ching Man, P.C. 214 charged with depositing | would be working towards and would ultimately produce a permanent relief It is a on this principle that the Bank of France has proceeded with some success, but any such plan is ar Kalla Singb, P.C. 577, said that at 2 p.m. on too delicate to be made the subject of internathe 12th inst he was on duty on Praya West tional compact. BILLY, THE RAT-KINGER. This reminds me of snother story. Once unon a time, or to be more precise, in November, 1823. in Westminster, a sporting dog called Billy, w a slipped at 100 rats in a pit, he killed the lot in flye minutes. He was a wonderfel ratter. When he died Pierce Egar wrote the fellowing epitaph for "Bell's Life":-

"The celebrated hero of the canine race to he joy of the rats, lost his wind on February 23.1829. ON SHANGHAL. in Panton-st., Haymarket. The budy sha chers and dog priggers are outdone upon this suit, and the remains of Billy, instead of being observed in clay are preserved in an elegant glass out and gilt frame. The ex-champion, Tom Cribb, who | ON MANILA. liked Billy when alive, still likes him althourd. told out. Billy was the property of Charley On SINGAPORE:-Aistrop when he last barked out an adien. although Cribb was, his tender nurse up to the Sovenesens, Bank's Buying Rate, 9.40 time he gave up his ghost. are extremely glad to find that Billy has left no successor to give them the night Not a bark was heard, but a mournful white Broke in cadence slow from the race canine: Buits-And the pinched-up ear and the wagging tail.
Were drooping low 'mid the gen'ral wail. Not a bark was hoard - o'en he en wine our Had his ivories closed, and without demur-The dustman and biggar and sweep let pass, So down in the mouth the whole race, alas!

Not a bell was toll'd, not a shop was shut, Not a searcher deigned his fives to put On the lifeless corse of the Prince of Dugs. Whose history even history flogs. Not a bark was heard, but a lively squeak Was echoed from rat to rat (a whole week), From Whitechapel Church to Picoadil'y.

Of 'Long life to grim Death for killing Billy." AN EXPERT ARCHER And now let us revert to the "genns home" once again. On September 4, 1691. Sir W. Wood, an expert archer, who was 82, was buried in St. James's Church, Clerkenwell, having this epitaph inscribed near his grave :--"Sir William Wood lyes very near this stone, In's time in archery excell'd by none; Few were his equels, and this noble art

Has sufford now in the most tander part. Long did he live the honour of the bow. And his long life to that alone did owe; But how can art secure, or what can save Extreme old age from an appointed grave? Surviving archers much his loss lament, And in respect bestowed this monument. Where whistling arrows did his worth proclaim; And eternized his memory and name."

ON A BACEHORSE OWNER. A gentleman who died at Neymarket towards the close of last century has an epitaph, close on 90 lines in leogth. It is too much linked sweetness" to reproduce here, but it is worthy of note for the ingenious introduction of the names of some teens of racehorses, which the gentleman owned to his honour and profit. I may, however, cite a few lines:-

SACRED. MEMORY OF JOHN PRATT, ESQ. Of Askrigg in Woosleydale, Who died at Newmarket, May 8th, 1785.

By that Jockey Necessity, He never swerved out of the course of Honour, Then follows a recital of his victories on the Parf. It is well to observe how Death is made. to play his partin every sport according to fancy. Truly then Death " melts our kindness, softens sportsmen. Such are some of the carinatties of sporting epitaphs which I have stumbled scross without hunting for them.
